

More About Felix

Felix's startup passion led him to join WHub as Growth Manager, building a connected ecosystem for like-minded startups. His entrepreneurial curiosity led him to co-found and lead 3 fast-growing tech startups. He leads the growth strategy at The Wave, Abtitu and executed a hybrid growth model in data analytics, digital content, web optimization, user acquisition and UI/ UX design. Prior to joining the startup community, he co-founded Cloudbreakr - Asia leading influencer marketing platform, bridging the gap between data science, social media, and online advertising.

Felix graduated from The University of Bath with a degree in Mathematical Science and received a Master's degree in Marketing from The Hong Kong Polytechnic University. He is deeply involved in helping founders, and the startup community to thrive. He always puts forward new ideas if only he had more time to implement them. In his spare time, he loves playing football, cooking pasta and transforming his ideas into reality by Lego.